Dear Mary Moore,

In my attempts to find a job, I came across your ad on Care.com. I am very experienced with kids and I believe I'm highly qualified for the babysitting position.

I have worked with about 3 different families and the only reason I am no longer with them is because their schedules don't conflict with their child's anymore. Any of my past employers will have nothing to say but positive things about me. I also have natural experience from living with my sister and her baby.

I am responsible, caring and dependable. I will always be honest and communicate with my employer. I have amazing interpersonal skills. My experience has given the prerequisite skills needed for any position and definitely the position of babysitting. Hopefully, you review my qualifications and consider me for the job.

Thank you for your consideration.
